

2012 NASDAE Meeting

Saturday, March 3, 4 – 6:50 pm
Concourse C, Lower Level, Hilton

- 4:00 – 4:15      Welcome
                      Vicki Breen, NM and Limeul Eubanks, MS
- 4:20 – 5:30      General Session
                      Deborah Reeve, Executive Director, NAEA National Art Education Association
                      Scott Shuler, President, NAFME National Association for Music Educators
                      Beth Cornell, Consultant, Pennsylvania Department of Education
                      Arts Advocacy, National Arts Standards, State Standards and Core Curriculum
- 5:35 – 6:15      Beth Cornell, Limeul Eubanks
                      Website and other electronic communications
                      On-line meetings
- 6:20 – 6:35      Selection of discussion points
- 6:40 – 6:50      Discussion and Review of Issues – Break-out sessions
                      Report of groups
                      Collection of Bios of Membership
- 6:50              Adjourn

"I believe that arts education can help build the case for the importance of a well-rounded, content-rich curriculum in at least three ways: First, the arts significantly boost student achievement, reduce discipline problems, and increase the odds that students will go on to graduate from college. Second, arts education is essential to stimulating the creativity and innovation that will prove critical to young Americans competing in a global economy. And last, but not least, the arts are valuable for their own sake, and they empower students to create and appreciate aesthetic works."

U.S. Secretary of Education Arne Duncan